A cDNA encoding a putative insect hormone receptor was isolated from a silkworm, Bombyx mori, fat body cDNA library by the cross-species hybridization of a cDNA encoding a putative insect hormone receptor of Bombyx mori with a cDNA encoding the insect hormone receptor of the silkworm, Bombyx mandarina. The cDNA encoded a protein consisting of 333 amino acid residues, which showed about 28-31% identity to insect hormone receptors. The protein had a putative ligand-binding domain and a putative transmembrane domain. It also showed 60-65% identity to the insect hormone receptors of the silkworm and other insect species. The transcript of the cDNA was detected in the fat body, ovary and testis, but not in the brain, midgut, Malpighian tubules, hemocytes, silk glands, ovary and testis of the fifth-instar larva. The transcript was also detected in the fat body, ovary and testis, but not in the brain, midgut, Malpighian tubules, hemocytes, silk glands, ovary and testis of the pupa.Q: android: how to use layout params on TextView to make it resizable? I'm trying to get the width and height of a TextView programatically. It works perfectly except I'm not able to make the TextView resizable when I set the layout params.
